

INDICE

Avvertenza bibliografica	13
Illustrazioni	23
Introduzione	27
I. Leggere la Divina Commedia : un approccio testuale	33
II. Notes on Dante's Use of Classical Myths and the Mythographical Tradition	41
III. Dante as Reader and Critic of Courtly Literature	51
IV. Rome and Florence in Dante's Divine Comedy	67
V. Dante's Views on Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. Perspectives from the New (Fourteenth) Century	81
VI. Mito e verità biblica in Dante	97
VII. Biblical Citation in Dante's Divine Comedy	119
VIII. Perspectives on Intertextuality in Dante's Divina Commedia	135

ix.	Movement and Meaning in the Divine Comedy : Toward an Understanding of Dante's Processional Poetics	149
x.	On Dante and the Visual Arts	181
xi.	The Bird's-Eye View: Dante's Use of Perspective	199
xii.	Infernal Guardians Revisited: «Cerbero, il gran vermo» (Inf. VI 22)	209
xiii.	Plutus, Fortune, and Michael: The Eternal Triangle	223
xiv.	The Visual Tradition of Inferno VII: The Relationship of Plutus and Fortune	239
xv.	Inferno VIII: The Passage across the Styx	265
xvi.	The Land of the Living and the Land of the Dead: Burial, Entombment, and Cemeteries in Dante's Divine Comedy	283
xvii.	The Poetics of Citation: Dante's Divina Commedia and the Bible	295
xviii.	Deceivers Deceived: Devilish Doubletalk in Inferno XXI-XXIII	305
xix.	Iconographic Parody in Inferno XXI	327
xx.	Dante's Towering Giants: Inferno XXXI	345
xxi.	Purgatorio IV: Made in the Shade, the Posture of Indolence, and Dante's Strategy in the Ante-Purgatory	367
xxii.	A Nose for Art (Purgatorio VII): Notes on Dante's Iconographical Sense	385

xxiii. The Celebration of Poetry: A Reading of Purgatory xxii	393 xxiv. Food for Thought: Purgatorio xxii 146–147	413
xxv. Virgil, Statius and Dante: An Unusual Trinity	423
xxvi. Paradiso xxx	439
xxvii. Lectura dantis: Paradiso xxxiii	453
Indice dei nomi	477